Gay support student driven, Ontario reminds

In a strongly worded speech, the McGuinty government has reaffirmed that it is students, not school administrators, that determine which schools are home to anti-homophobia support groups.

"The choice to have an LGBTQ group will be the choice of students, not the choice of principals and school boards," Toronto Centre MPP Glen Murray said in a speech designed to combat "unacceptable" levels of bullying and high suicide rates among gay and lesbian youth.

Murray delivered the speech before the Pride Toronto international marshals' reception Friday on behalf of Premier Dalton McGuinty.

Despite the legislation, it took until April 2011 for Ontario's Catholic school system to allow clubs that focus solely on homophobia, not just broad "equity" clubs that deal with all kinds of discrimination.

But for Leanne Iskander, an LGBTQ activist, and Grade 11 student at St. Joseph's Catholic Secondary School, McGuinty's words weren't clear enough.

Iskander, 16, has been pushing for a gay-straight alliance club, or GSA, at her Mississauga high school. The school denied her request in March, but eventually allowed for an LGBTQ club, with the stipulation that its name could not reference GSAs or rainbows. Iskander's group settled on the name Open Arms.

Mayor misses pride of place

Toronto Pride Parade draws more than one million revellers, but city Mayor Rob Ford isn't among them

More than one million people jammed the streets of downtown Toronto yesterday, sporting rainbow-striped outfits, corsets and glitter for the country's largest gay rights parade.

The crowd whistled and cheered as the Pride parade's colourful floats — many covered in balloons and blaring Lady Gaga music — wound down Yonge Street under the blazing sun.

"Canadians know how to rock," said Andres Fagundez, who came from New York City with his partner to take part in the Pride festivities.

"This kind of crowd, this kind of people celebrating ... This is something you don't see in many other places."

People pressed five-deep against the barriers to watch bare-chested dancers, a blue sequinned marching band and drag queens strut to the thumping music.

"He's supposed to represent who Toronto is, and Toronto is everybody." PARADE-GOER ESTHER FREEMAN SAID OF MISSING MAYOR

Police officers also took part in the parade, driving down in a cruiser bearing a rainbow flag, the symbol for gay rights.

Still, one person was noticeably absent from the crowd — Toronto Mayor Rob Ford.

In the lead-up to Pride Week, the city's annual gay rights festival, the mayor came under fire for saying he would skip the parade to honour a family tradition of spending Canada Day weekend at his cottage.

But Ford hadn't ruled out attending other Pride events and some wondered if he would make a surprise appearance at yesterday's celebrations.

Ford's office told reporters yesterday he planned to stay at the family's cottage.

Some revellers at the parade said they were disappointed by the mayor's decision.

"I think it's stupid for him not to be here," said Esther Freeman, 21, who watched the parade with friends and danced to the music coming from the floats.

She said it's the mayor's responsibility to attend all major events in the city.

Ford is the first mayor in years to miss the parade.

Former mayors David Miller, Mel Lastman and Barbara Hall all marched in the Pride Parade, which attracts more than one million people and pumps millions of dollars into the city's economy.

Officials brace for sovereignty vote at UN

Israeli and Palestinian security forces are already taking precautions to avoid an outbreak of violence after an expected UN vote for Palestinian independence in September, officials on both sides said yesterday, reflecting shared concerns about the possibility of renewed fighting this fall.

For now, Israeli and Palestinian officials said they do not want — or expect — armed hostilities to resume. But both sides fear that one small incident could quickly spin out of control.

"We need only popular and peaceful struggle," said Amin Makboul, a top official in Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas' Fatah Party. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Vote paves way for female PM

The sister of Thailand's fugitive former prime minister led his loyalists to a landslide election victory yesterday, a stunning rout of the military-backed government that last year crushed protests by his supporters with a bloody crackdown that left the capital in flames.

The results pave the way for Thaksin Shinawatra's youngest sister, widely considered his proxy, to become the nation's first female prime minister — if the coup-prone Thai army accepts the results.

The Southeast Asian kingdom has been wracked by upheaval since 2006, when Thaksin was toppled in a military coup amid accusations of corruption and a rising popularity that some saw as a threat to the nation's much-revered monarchy.

Greek ban doesn't deter flotilla activists

MAHMUD HAMS/AFP/GETTY IMAGES

▶ A Palestinian boy waves a Greek flag yesterday during a rally in Gaza City in support of the Freedom Flotilla hoping to breach Israel's sea blockade on Gaza.

▶ Vessel patrons begin 'open-ended' fast ▶ Demand captain's release

Organizers of a Gaza-bound flotilla said yesterday they have not abandoned their plans to breach Israel's sea blockade of the territory despite a Greek government ban on their vessels leaving the country's ports.

The campaign experienced a major setback when Greece announced its restrictions Friday, and authorities arrested the captain of a boat carrying American activists that tried to leave Greece without permission.

However, co-ordinators of the flotilla were trying to maintain momentum with small protests in Athens in the face of increasing calls for them to scrap their campaign. On Saturday, the Middle East Quartet of Mideast mediators — the U.S., UN, EU and Russia — urged governments to discourage Gaza-bound flotillas that could escalate tension in the region.

Several protesters from the American vessel that was intercepted by Greek authorities began what they described as an "open-ended fast" outside the U.S. Embassy and planned to stay there overnight. They want Washington to pressure Greece to release their American captain, John Klusmire, and allow them to depart for the Gaza Strip.

"The ban is there and we have already said that we are still considering to sail. This story is not finished ... ships are free to go to other locations" besides Gaza."
GREEK ACTIVIST DIMITRIS PLIONIS

The U.S. Embassy provided standard consular services to the American citizens in the flotilla "before and after" the interception of their vessel, spokesman Stuart Smith said.

The Obama administration had warned American activists against participating in the flotilla, saying they might be violating U.S. law because Gaza is run by the militant Hamas group, a U.S.-designated foreign terrorist organization. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Greece's shifting alliance

Greece, keen to boost international investment and ease its financial crisis, has maintained close relations with Arab countries, but in recent years has forged closer military and economic ties with Israel.

The shift came amid a deterioration in the Jewish state's ties with Turkey, Greece's traditional regional rival and a fierce critic of Israel's three-week Gaza offensive launched in late 2008. THE CANADIAN PRESS

William lauds Quebecers' vigour

Royal couple hits up Charlottetown, then off to Yellowknife and Calgary before heading to California

Speaking only in French, Prince William hailed Quebecers' "vitality and vigour" yesterday as he visited a city where a key British military victory more than 250 years ago still resonates politically.

"It's an honour for me to be here with you in Quebec today," he said in Quebec City after inspecting members of the Royal 22e Regiment, commonly known as the Van Doos.

"For me, as a soldier and an airman, it is a privilege to have inspected a great regiment like the Royal 22nd.

"Your reputation is as strong as it is legendary. This place has such beauty and history. You, the Québécois et Québécoises, have such vitality and vigour."

The couple then delighted the crowd by going for a walkabout and shaking hands with dozens of excited well-wishers.

A few hundred Quebec sovereigntists took to Quebec City streets to protest their presence in the province yesterday. The event went off peacefully.

"We do not recognize the authority, the legitimacy of the Crown, of the monarchy here in Quebec and it's not a national symbol for us," said Maxime Laporte of the Reseau de resistance du Québécois.

"It's rather a symbol of imperialism, of war crimes against humanity, against our people."

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Protests

William and Kate's visit to Quebec City, which came one day after they toured Montreal, rankled many sovereigntists.

- One reason is that the couple visited the Citadelle, a fortified residence at the foot of the Plains of Abraham, where the British defeated the French in a key battle in 1759.
- Many in Quebec see the monarchy not only as a colonial relic, but also as a reminder of ancestors who had their land conquered by the British army; they resent that the sovereign still serves as Canada's head of state.

OTTAWA WOMAN DEAD IN MEXICO

Family of stabbing victim asks for privacy

An Ottawa dentist whose wife was killed in Mexico last week is asking for privacy.

John Baylis, speaking from the couple's home in Atotonilco, Mexico, said he would like to keep the tragedy "a family thing."

He was in Ottawa when a maid found his wife's body last Wednesday. Judith Zena Baylis, 64, had been repeatedly stabbed, according to Miguel Angel Rangel-Zendejas, deputy prosecutor for the region.

Rangel-Zendejas said he hasn't ruled out robbery but is investigating other motives because few valuables were stolen.

The Department of Foreign Affairs said consular staff are working with Mexican authorities and are ready to help the family. STEVE COLLINS WITH FILES FROM THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

StatsCan botches GDP report

Failure to properly test new computer program blamed for inaccurate numbers on economic growth ◗ The agency played down the error

An embarrassing error in a Statistics Canada release in April was the result of a failure to thoroughly test a new computer system, newly released documents show.

The agency issued a series of erroneous GDP numbers for the provinces early on April 28, and that afternoon got a telephone call from a Royal Bank economist raising doubts about the accuracy of the figures.

Robert Hogue told the agency that the Saskatchewan number was seriously at odds with the Royal Bank's internal growth estimate for that province.

Days later, senior Statistics Canada officials confirmed the error, and on May 2 "suspended" the release on the agency website.

Two weeks after being alerted to the bogus numbers, Statistics Canada finally corrected the original figures, in a web release on May 11.

The revisions pegged Saskatchewan's economic growth in 2010 at 4.4 per cent, rather than the anemic 1.4 per cent of the April 28 release. Most of the other provinces' GDP numbers were also revised upward.

Spokesman Art Ridgeway at the time blamed a new computer, saying "two steps got reversed in order."

But internal documents obtained by The Canadian Press show the problem in fact arose from a failure to properly test the new data-crunching system.

"Testing was done using previously published data 2002-2008/09," says an investigation report. "However, (there was) no parallel run for 2010 provincial GDP data as such."

The documents do not explain why the crucial test was omitted, but refer in general to "challenges in regards to funding and finding IT expertise for IT conversion, especially given the complexity and scope of the project."

Material related to the internal investigation was obtained under the Access to Information Act.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Numbers game

- The incident tarnished the reputation of an agency that prides itself on accuracy.
- A spokesman for Statistics Canada did not respond to a series of questions about the erroneous release, except to say the agency believes it properly flagged the correction.
- Statistics Canada has been caught issuing bogus numbers before. In 2006, the agency quietly corrected an inflation number, noting it had understated inflation by half a percentage point since 2001.

Economists brace for job figures this week

North American traders will return from patriotic holidays to a week heavy with economic data that will paint a clearer picture of how the economy is faring. Reports to be released this week include data on industrial products and raw materials, followed by building permits and the new home-price index.

But the most telling reports come Friday, when both the U.S. and Canada release job figures for June. The outlook is not rosy. Economists expect gains in the U.S. to be soft on the back of a weak second quarter. The consensus call is for 90,000 net new jobs, not enough to bring the jobless rate down from the current 9.1. per cent.

In Canada, economists expect the economy churned out 15,000 net new jobs in June, down from 22,000 in May. That would push the unemployment rate up a notch to 7.5 per cent from 7.4 per cent.

McDonald's to grease the wheels

McDonald's is fuelling its trucks in the United Arab Emirates with oil from its own vats. Dubai-based Neutral Fuels announced yesterday that it has reached a deal to convert used vegetable oil from McDonald's restaurants in the UAE into 100 per cent biodiesel to power the fast food giant's delivery trucks across the Gulf country.

"It's the first time we are doing it with a fuel that burns 50 per cent cleaner than normal diesel and has a lower carbon footprint because it's coming from a waste vegetable product," said Karl W. Feilder, chairman of the Neutral Group.

McDonald's said the biodiesel initiative is part of larger plans in the UAE, which is flush with crude oil but is also trying to stake its claim as a leader in renewable energy.

Neutral would not say how much oil will be produced by the more than 80 McDonald's in the UAE, but said it's enough to power the chain's vehicles.

▶ Pub quiz host Terrance Balazo ponders his next crowd stumper.

THE MAN WITH THE QUESTIONS

URBAN COMPASS

LIA GRAINGER
METRO TORONTO

It's 9 p.m. on a Monday at Clinton's Tavern on Bloor Street West, and the back room is packed with unusually quiet patrons. They sit huddled in groups and speak in hushed whispers. On the stage usually reserved for boisterous bands and DJs stands actor Terrance Balazo, reading from the screen of his laptop.

"Yeomen Warders at the Tower of London are commonly known by what other name?" Balazo asks. The crowd ponders the British tradition and then each team scribbles down an answer.

After a minute, Balazo strikes again: "What is the smallest bone in the body?"

It's pub quiz night and, in Toronto, Balazo is the unofficial king. What started as a part-time gig to supplement his work as an actor and children's-theatre director has become much more than that. Each week, he personally composes some 160 questions for the three nights he hosts around the city. The longest running is Tuesdays at The Fox and Fiddle, where he has been dealing out stumpers to crowds of up to 150 for more than five years.

"It's a real community," Balazo says of his many regulars. "People like to go drinking and they also like to show how smart they are." It's a mixed crowd: Everyone from college kids to Bay Street lawyers comes to play. George Stroumboulopoulos even shows up occasionally. (He's pretty good.)

A British phenomenon that has found a home in this commonwealth country, Balazo says the popularity of pub quizzes has exploded since he started hosting — he estimates there are now 10 to 15 quiz events a week in Toronto.

And his all-time favourite question? "Which famous fashion designer made the Nazi SS uniforms?" He grins while I ponder the answer.

"Hugo Boss." He shakes his head. "Crazy, right?"

Balazo admits that one of the side-effects of writing thousands of questions is that he sometimes loses his sense of what's easy and what's hard. "You want the crowd to go 'Ah!' and breathe a sigh of recognition when they hear the answer," Balazo says.

So, in the interest of scratching that itch, here are the answers to those two Clinton's questions: "Beefeaters" and "the stirrup" (it's in the ear). Now go ahead and breathe that sigh.

If these walls could talk: 'House' marks 100 years

NEWS WORTH SHARING

Media will always have to report on the tough stuff. But we know that Canada is full of compassionate individuals, inspiring projects and stories worth celebrating. Here's just one.

Toronto's second-oldest settlement house has seen Hogtown go through a lot of changes, but it has always kept up.

In 1911, University of Toronto students formed the Central Neighbourhood House to help newcomers to Toronto. Over the decades, the "House" has expanded to a dynamic community centre, giving back to the people who make Toronto exceptional.

Through the year, CNH is celebrating a century of service to the community.

"The events and activities of the year are designed to bring people together in celebration, regardless of their origins, living conditions or bank accounts," said Liz Forestell, executive director of CNH.

"We hope to show that while we've grown, we still remember our roots; we know where we came from."

Baboon wasn't amused with this park

A wayward baboon that apparently escaped from an amusement park and became a mini-celebrity — appearing at a golf course and being followed on Twitter — was captured Saturday after spending three days on the lam.

The animal appeared to be unharmed when it was found and tranquilized at a farm in southern New Jersey. The farm isn't far from Six Flags Great Adventure's Monkey Jungle in Jackson Township, which has about 150 baboons that are part of a drive-thru safari.

Park officials confirmed the capture and said they believed the animal was theirs. But they won't know for sure until it's assessed and they can see if it has a microchip that's embedded in all their baboons.

Numerous online followers tracked the baboon's travels after it initially was spotted Thursday. Many posted on a tongue-in-cheek Twitter account created by a person posing as the baboon.

Officials had said the baboon didn't pose a threat to residents but as a precaution warned them not to approach it if they encountered it.

Patience makes the Soundgarden grow

Chris Cornell on getting the band back together — and making sure it doesn't fall apart again

PAT HEALY
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Chris Cornell has a very practical approach to Soundgarden these days. He does what he does because he and his band like it, not because a record company says they have to.

You've been doing a lot of solo touring. How different is the mindset for doing that from the mindset you have to have for these Soundgarden shows?
Lately I've been doing what I call the Songbook tour, which is pretty much just me and an acoustic guitar, so it's about as opposite as you can get. … The only way to get any further away is if it was just me and a puppet. Then it would be a completely different genre of entertainment. And in that way, you don't really have to strive for balance. One kind of takes care of the other.

After touring around for a month and a half, doing that [acoustic tour], I was really looking forward to getting in the studio with Soundgarden and playing loud, aggressive rock music and then after doing that for a while it will feel great to just sit alone and play an acoustic guitar, so in that way I think I'm pretty fortunate to be able to have such dramatic extremes happening.

"We're just as adventurous as we've always been, so there are song arrangements and styles that are different than anything we've ever done, but no matter what, we would be doing that."
CHRIS CORNELL ON SOUNDGARDEN

On these new dates are you guys doing any of the new stuff you've been recording?
I'm not sure if we will do that now mainly because we haven't toured in 12 years or whatever it's been. It's hard to actually come up with a set list that's inclusive of all the stuff that we would play even if we weren't working on new material. We felt like we haven't played in so long, haven't toured and haven't played in front of these different people in so long. How are we going to really make everyone happy? We don't want people to show up and be like "It was great, but they didn't play this or that." So to throw in new material, we don't know if it's something we want to do right now.

From the new songs, is there anything you're really psyched about that's almost ready to go, that you would love to play?
The whole album is close enough that I kind of get a sense of the overall feeling of it and I'm pretty happy with that. It's pretty great. It's very different. But then again, they all were, so it's not like we completely changed. Musically, at some point, I think we were always kind of doing that. And there's always familiar elements going on but it's also new.

Is there any feeling of proceeding with caution as far as hoping you don't get involved in any of the pitfalls that caused the tension that led to the breakup?
Well, I think the main one is avoiding concerns about scheduling. I suppose there was always a factor of record companies worrying about competition, other record labels and what they're releasing by what bands that would be in direct competition with our band. And that's concerned with a lot of different things — with touring, with radio airplay, with TV airplay and all the things that go along with it. And we're not really in that position anymore. We're just Soundgarden and we're just in that stage of being a band that there isn't really competition. There isn't really another band that can rush in and take our place if we're not ready.

Transformers robots have lost some of their money-making power but still have delivered the biggest opening weekend domestically so far this year. Distributor Paramount Pictures said yesterday that Transformers: Dark of the Moon took in $97.4 million domestically in its first weekend. That beat the $90.2 million debut of Disney's Pirates of the Caribbean: On Stranger Tides. But the domestic haul for the sci-fi sequel was down from the $127.9 million first weekend for 2009's Transformers: Revenge of the Fallen. Since opening Tuesday night, the new Transformers pulled in $162 million through Sunday, a drop from $200.1 million for Revenge of the Fallen in its first five days.

Album took 8 years to make: Welch

KARL WALTER/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Gillian Welch

As Gillian Welch has promoted her long-awaited new album, The Harrow & The Harvest, there comes a point early in each interview when a reporter asks her why it took her eight years to deliver it.

Every. Single. Time.

There's no good answer, of course. These things occasionally take a while.

"No one wanted this record out faster than we did," Welch said with a small laugh. "That's just a fact. There's no way. I don't actually believe that anyone was more miserable than myself about the eight-year wait because it isn't like we took a vacation. We actually were working the entire time. But the creative breakthrough really came when we kind of somehow managed to step outside the stress and the panic about it, you know? That's just no way to work."

By "we," she means her life (and music) partner, David Rawlings. They've been working as a duo under a soloist's name for more than 15 years now.

The couple has inspired a generation of musicians who look to acoustic instruments with a kind of rock 'n' roll fervour that didn't exist when Welch and Rawlings first met at the Berklee College of Music in Boston as students in the early '90s.

The pair wrote hundreds of songs for the new album, recorded them in rough form and eventually discarded them in "a song cemetery."

Welch also found the simple act of travelling helped as well. The couple makes a conscious effort to take things slow in life, skipping planes for four wheels on the open highway and remaining disconnected as much as possible from the hustle of modern life. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Star in transformation

LaBeouf calls wrap on Transformers role after third installment
Actor says he has nothing new to bring to the popular action franchise

Shia LaBeouf's days of battling the Decepticons look to be over, with the Transformers star saying he has nothing more to offer after three films playing kid-next-door Sam Witwicky.

The 26-year-old American actor said he was through with the action-packed franchise.

"I'm done," he told The Associated Press at the recent opening of Transformers: Dark of the Moon at the Moscow International Film Festival.

"I'm sure they will make more of them. It's still a very hot franchise."

He added "I love making them (the movies). I love the crew. I love Michael (Bay). I love the cast. I love Sam ... but I don't have anything new to contribute and I don't think there's anywhere to take Sam really."

LeBeouf's nerdy character helped one alien race of robots, the Transformers, overpower another race, the evil Decepticons, with Earth as the battleground.

Directed by Michael Bay, Transformers 3 also stars Patrick Dempsey, Frances McDormand, John Malkovich and Victoria's Secret model Rosie Huntington-Whitely.

Paramount Pictures said the movie earned $37.3 million Wednesday in the U.S. on its first day — a 40 per cent drop from its predecessor, Revenge of the Fallen.

LaBeouf explained Witwicky's role in the latest movie.

"Nobody really cares about Sam anymore," he said.

"He has no purpose. He saved the world twice and has sort of been thrown to the side. This is a dude who used to validate himself on his involvement with these robots, (but) these robots no longer need him," he said in the AP interview.

"This is like the most broken Sam's ever been in the three movies ... and he sort of builds himself up through the course of the film."

In addition to the Transformers series, the talented actor also starred in the 2010 film Wall Street: Money Never Sleeps, as well as Eagle Eye in 2008 and Disturbia in 2007.

The Transformers trilogy is based on the cartoons of 1980s that were themselves inspired by the Marvel Comics comic book of the same name.

Elijah Wood’s latest acting gig is ridiculous, and he’s OK with that.

The actor stars in the new FX show Wilfred, playing a depressed guy named Ryan who is on the verge of suicide. He finds a new zest for life while hanging out with his neighbour’s dog Wilfred, except this dog is quite different.

As Ryan sees it, Wilfred is a talking man in a dog suit who also smokes cigarettes.

“There were days where there would just be absurd situations that my character and Wilfred would get into and you’d step out of that and think ‘what are we doing? What total madness are we creating?’” Wood said.

“And there was a gleefulness associated with it like wow, this is really bizarre and wonderful and it was a joy. So much fun.”

Wood says over the course of the season the character of a stuffed bear that Wilfred is drawn to will be developed.

“There’s an interesting parallel because Ryan is the only one to see Wilfred as a man in a dog suit and Wilfred refers to this bear as having its own personality as well, but we never see bear move or talk. It’s very weird.”

In October, Wood heads to New Zealand to resume the role of Frodo Baggins from The Lord of the Rings trilogy in The Hobbit.

Kate gives Canadian designer regal replay

- Duchess of Cambridge gives homegrown talent second nod on tour
- She first wore ensemble by designer on day one of royal Canadian visit

CHRIS JACKSON/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Prince William, Duke of Cambridge and Catherine, Duchess of Cambridge, attend a Freedom of the City Ceremony outside City Hall yesterday in Quebec.

It was a regal repeat for Kate as she opted to wear a dress from Canadian designer Erdem for the second time during the royal tour.

The Duchess of Cambridge appeared at a prayer service in Quebec City on Sunday wearing a navy lace Jacquenta dress from Erdem Moralioglu, who is a native of the province.

A model is seen wearing the dress in a photo on the Erdem website categorized under the pre-fall 2011 collection.

The Montreal-born, London-based Moralioglu behind the Erdem label created another lacy frock worn by Kate on the first day of her first official visit abroad.

Kate stepped off of a Canadian Forces jet Thursday in Ottawa donning a elbow-length, dark-coloured Erdem dress.

She wore the dress to attend a wreath-laying ceremony with Prince William at the National War Memorial in the heart of the city's downtown core.

That was followed by a walkabout among the thousands of people lining the memorial square. The pair then made their way to an official welcome ceremony at Rideau Hall.

Swimming in bling made for a princess

At her royal wedding, Britain's Kate Middleton donned an heirloom tiara charged with historical significance. Princess Charlene of Monaco opted for something much more personal, choosing a bold, asymmetrical creation in diamond and white gold that symbolizes the one-time Olympic swimmer's love for the sea.

Made by French-German jeweler Lorenz Baumer, the "Diamond Foam" tiara in white gold and nearly 60 karats worth of diamonds evokes the spray thrown off a crashing wave. Thin strips of precision-cut diamonds arch up from behind the left ear and fan out in an almost punk-ish explosion at the temple. Large round cut diamonds, the largest weighing 8 karats, punctuate the ends of the sparkling arcs.

"Princess Charlene is a swimmer and Monaco is this little contort on the Mediterranean, so the reference to the sea was something very personal for her and at the same time a symbol of the Monegasque people," Baumer told The Associated Press.

The princess wore the headpiece to the lavish multi-course gala dinner that capped the two-day-long festivities around Charlene's long-awaited marriage to Monaco's ruling prince, Albertzqz II, the palace said Sunday.

Baumer submitted three sketches. The designer declined to give the price of the tiara, but hinted at a consequent sum.

Dinner. Maple-glazed plank salmon with coconut rice

4 portions
Prep time: 20 min.
Total time: 4 hr 30 min

▶ From Time for Dinner by Pilar Guzmán, Jenny Rosenstrach and Alanna Stang.

You may have already discovered how cedar planks on the grill keep salmon moist and imbue it with rich, smoky flavour. But if you don't own a grill, why not try it in the oven? (Make sure the vent is working.)

Ingredients:

- 1 cedar plank (for cooking)
- 1/3 cup maple syrup
- 1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
- ½ teaspoon soy sauce
- juice of 1 large lime
- 1 ½ pounds salmon fillet
- 2 cups chicken broth
- 1 13.5-ounce can light coconut milk
- 2 cups uncooked jasmine rice
- salt

Preparation:

1. Soak the cedar plank in water for 4 hours; place it on a rimmed baking sheet lined with foil.
2. Preheat oven to 500° F.
3. In a bowl, combine the syrup, mustard, soy sauce, and lime juice. Put the fish in this mixture to marinate while you cook the rice.
4. In a saucepan, bring the broth and coconut milk to a boil.
5. Stir in the rice, reduce heat to low, cover, and simmer for 20 minutes.
6. Place the fish on the plank skin-side down, sprinkle it with the salt, and bake for 12 to 15 minutes, until it flakes easily but is not dry.
7. Transfer the marinade to a saucepan and heat it over low-medium heat until slightly reduced, about 3 minutes. Drizzle it over the fish before serving.

Dessert. Unbelievable Chocolate Chip Cookies

About 50 two-bite cookies
Prep time: 40 min.
Total time: 60 min

▶ From The Sneaky Chef by Missy Chase Lapine

Oats and white beans make a decent chocolate chip cookie, you ask incredulously? And I want to throw in wheat germ and whole-wheat flour! Well, tasting is believing.

Preparation:

1. Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Remove butter from fridge to let soften.
2. In bowl, whisk flour. Blend, baking soda, salt, ground oats, and ground almonds (optional). Set aside.
3. In the bowl of a mixer, beat butter and both sugars until creamy. Beat in egg, vanilla, and White Bean Puree. Add dry ingredients and mix on low. Stir in chocolate chips (and walnuts or dried berries). Make two-bite cookies by dropping rounded half-teaspoonfuls, spaced 2 inches apart, onto non-stick or parchment-lined baking sheets.
4. Bake for 12 to 14 minutes or until golden brown. Let cool on a metal rack. Store cookies in airtight container.

Ingredients:

- 1 cup Flour Blend (see bottom fact box)
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup rolled oats, finely ground in a food processor
- 2 tablespoons blanched, slivered almonds, finely ground in a food processor (omit if allergic)
- 8 tablespoons unsalted butter
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1/4 cup brown sugar
- 1 large egg
- 1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
- 1/4 cup White Bean Puree (see right fact box)
- 1/2 cup semi-sweet chocolate chips
- Optional extra boost: 1 cup chopped walnuts or dried berries

The Flour Blend

- 1 cup all-purpose, unbleached white flour
- 1 cup whole wheat flour
- 1 cup wheat germ, unsweetened

▶ Combine flours and wheat germ in a bowl. It can be stored in a sealed, labelled plastic bag for months.

White Puree

- 2 cups cauliflower florets
- 2 zucchini, peeled and roughly chopped
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 3–4 tablespoons water, if necessary

▶ Steam cauliflower in steamer over 2 inches of water, using a tightly-covered pot, for about 10 mins.

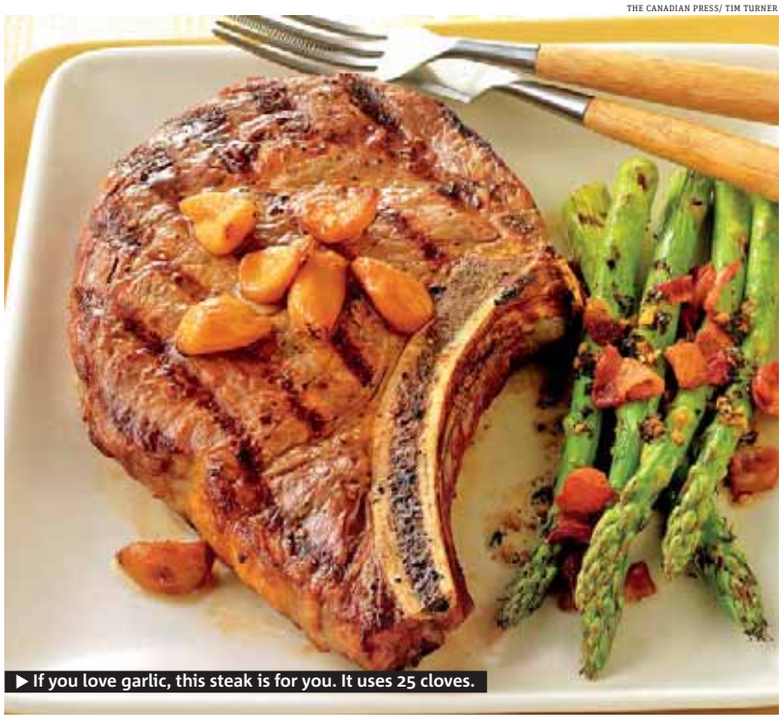
▶ Pulse raw peeled zucchini with the lemon juice only. Drain cooked cauliflower. Add it to the pulsed zucchini in bowl of processor with two tablespoons of water. Puree on high until smooth. Stop occasionally and push contents from the top to the bottom. If necessary, add the rest of the water.

▶ Makes about 2 cups of puree. Store in refrigerator for up to 3 days, or freeze 1/4 cup portions in sealed plastic bags or the small plastic containers.

Simplicity at its finest

Go back to delicious basics with garlic steak and grilled baked potatoes

THE CANADIAN PRESS/ TIM TURNER



▶ If you love garlic, this steak is for you. It uses 25 cloves.

Garlic fans will enjoy this grilled steak recipe. Bone-in rib-eye steaks are grilled with oil that has been infused with 25 garlic cloves and red pepper flakes.

Preparation:

1 In saucepan over low heat, combine garlic and red pepper flakes with 125 ml (1/2 cup) to 250 ml (1 cup) of oil, making sure you have enough oil to cover garlic cloves. Cook at a low simmer until garlic starts to brown, about 20 minutes. Remove pan from heat and let garlic cool in oil. Set aside.

2 Pour 50 ml (1/4 cup) of garlic oil onto sheet pan. Dredge steaks through oil, coating both sides. Season evenly with salt and pepper. Let steaks stand at room temperature for 30 minutes before grilling.

3 Prepare grill for direct cooking over high (230 to 290 C/450 to 550 F).

4 Brush cooking grates clean. Grill steaks over direct high heat, with lid closed as much as possible, until cooked to your desired doneness, 6 to 8 minutes for medium rare. Turn once or twice. Remove from grill and let rest for 5 minutes.

5 Serve steaks topped with sprinkling of salt and garlic. Spoon garlic oil over the steaks.

Ingredients:

- 25 garlic cloves, peeled, plus extra for garnish
- 0.5 ml (1/8 tsp) crushed red pepper flakes
- 125 ml to 250 ml (1/2 cup to 1 cup) extra-virgin olive oil
- 4 bone-in steaks (each 280 to 350 g/10 to 12 oz and 2.5 cm/1 inch thick), trimmed of excess fat
- Sea salt and freshly ground black pepper, to taste

WWF-Canada expanding a Living Planet @ Work program Opening eligibility to any size workplace

BEN KNIGHT
GREEN@METRONEWS.CA

So you know your workplace could easily reduce its environmental footprint and you're eager to help make a difference. The problem? Knowing exactly what to do — and where to start.

A year ago, WWF-Canada launched its Living Planet @ Work program, helping some of Canada's largest companies take firm, decisive action to become gentler on the planet. Each corporation paid in, and the program was based in Ontario.

A year later, the program is being hugely expanded. Starting very soon, any size company anywhere in Canada can take part. And the best news of all? It's free.

"It's all customized tools and activities and support programs for our corporate partners to educate and inspire their employees for sustainability initiatives," says Hadley Archer, WWF-Canada's VP of strategic partnerships and fundraising. "Often, these companies already know all this stuff. What they struggle with is how to meaningfully engage their employees."

Alicia Nixon is the environmental lead for Accenture Canada, one of this nation's top management consulting, technology services and outsourcing firms. She says the program has benefited the company in multiple ways.

ISTOCK PHOTOS

▶ The WWF-Canada website will soon have tools online for any size office to implement environmental changes in their workplace.

"We've incorporated all 11 of our offices across Canada into this program," she says. "It's becoming more and more important to incoming employees to be part of a company that is a responsible corporate citizen. These types of initiatives are very well received by the employees."

"There's a series of things that are common for most companies that we help them develop," Archer adds.

"This is to get people in an office environment educated and inspired — everything from paper use to lighting to how companies can meet in a more environmentally responsible way. And also how to tap into some of our campaigns — like Earth Hour and the Great Canadian Shoreline Cleanup."

And coming this fall, the doors will be open to any Canadian company that wants to take part.

"In partnership with Hewlett-Packard, we are launching a new second tier that will be free, aimed really at small and medium-sized businesses, to provide them a whole suite of online tools to support their initiatives," Archer explains.

"We're hoping to get upwards of 500 companies to join."

Beekeepers have to meet stringent production standards and conditions to be certified organic.

Not only do plants — the bees' source of nectar — need to be pesticide-free, their entire foraging area does, too.

This means honey has to come from areas where there is no human activity.

And organic certification bodies regularly test.

Cetero Research "Today's Research for Tomorrow's Healthcare"

Take a look at him now, skeptics!

Once pegged as a poor business planner, Mike Riehm did a workplace 180 and showed his critics who's boss

TURNING POINT

TERESA KRUZE
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

For 11 months the CBC TV crew followed Mike Riehm as he worked to build his business called EnviroBOND. With his family and friends gathered to watch the debut, a hush filled the room as the host faced the camera and said, "Have you ever wanted to start your own business? Here is an example of what NOT to do. Meet Mike Riehm."

Portrayed as a hard worker with a good product, the program slammed him for not having a sound business plan. Mike was devastated. His girlfriend left him. "I stared at a wall and cried for three days," Riehm says. "When you're going down like that you have two choices: sink or swim."

Today, 10 years later, Mike Riehm has learned some tough lessons, but the EnviroBOND products of sand, stone and organic paving materials are now being sold by 150 dealers across North America and are in seven countries around the world. He recently bought a beautiful new home, upgraded his business facility and got engaged to an amazing real estate agent.

Hey CBC, looking for a story on how a successful business is run? Meet Mike Riehm.

Riehm's Notes

Riehm on surviving a tough startup.

- Confront the bull by the horns — strive to learn the things that you are afraid to know.
- Build a flat workplace where it is OK to tell someone (even the boss) how they can improve their role.
- If you chose not to decide, you still have made a choice. Sitting on the fence is still a choice.
- You don't know what you don't know. Be aware of your own ignorance.

How to work when home is the office

Folks say it's lonely at the top But often it's even lonelier when you work from home for your own company

DREW HINSHAW
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

ISTOCK

It's easier to abandon your post, when your post is next door to your bed.

Keeping a sense of perspective as you run a business out of a spare bedroom can be a job unto itself, small business advisors say. With no boss keeping tabs on the company math, it's all too easy, says John Jantsch, author of Duct Tape Marketing, to allow yourself the leisurely lunch breaks and hammock days that can sink your entrepreneurship.

"It's eye opening to people when they learn how much an hour costs," he said.

"If you want to make $100,000 a year working 40 hour weeks, the entire time you have to be doing work worth $50 an hour."

Which is why, he advises, you have to obey your to-do list religiously. Tack a project list to your wall to make sure you're chasing the big goals, he adds.

"You need to constantly have that discipline to focus on the pay-off work," Jantsch warns. "Reading a magazine or cleaning the office probably isn't worth $100 an hour."

Leaving the office, however, could be the most profitable thing you do all day.

"For people just starting off, the highest pay-off work you can do is get out of the office," Jantsch says. "Go network, and start meeting people."

Assemble a Board of Advisors.

Every business, no matter how miniscule, needs a set of advisors, says Jim Blasingame, author of Small Business Is Like a Bunch of Bananas.

"The dream is that you have lunch once a month with your attorney, your insurance agent, your accountant, your consultant, and you all sit around the table and talk," he says.

It almost never happens, he adds. For a one-businessperson show, you'd do better to start with a single consultant paid for keeping an eye on the company's bottom line.

"It doesn't need to be a friend," he stresses. "It needs to be someone you're paying for absolute brutal, brutal bloodletting, gut-wrenching, eviscerating candor.

Meet with Customers

There's one sort of advice you can seek that's free, plus it's always right: the customer's

"About once a quarter, bring five or six of your customers for lunch," Jantsch suggests. "Not only will you get out of the house, you'll create a networking opportunity."

When tradition is taken too far

From playful initiation to violent hazing Where do we draw the line for our new high school students?

ISTOCK

▶ The first day of high school should be an exciting one, not a day to be afraid of.

For some, an initiation to high school is viewed as a rite of passage, usually involving some kind of embarrassing activity. Picture teenage boys in bunny costumes. But for others, it's become a cruel, sometimes violent, hazing.

Lucas Jansen, who starts high school in the fall, isn't too worried.

"I heard about the rainbow unicorn sticker thing," he said with a laugh.

"I think that if it's just stuff like that then it would be fine. It's doing little practical jokes, (those) things would be OK. If that's how freshie-ing was, then I think we wouldn't have to deal with all of this trouble, but I think people are just taking it way too far sometimes."

Earlier this month, two high school students in Lethbridge, Alta., pleaded guilty to hitting younger students with a goalie stick and skateboard as part of an initiation ritual last summer. Court heard both accused had been subjected to similar initiations when they started high school, but that didn't go over well with the judge who said they ought to know it's wrong.

The two boys were handed conditional discharges.

In Regina, two Grade 8 boys suffered what one lawyer described as a "horrific" beating by four high school boys.

The younger boys were heading back to their elementary school after lunch one day in June 2010, when they passed a high school and were beckoned by the older boys. The younger boys were taken behind a hockey arena where they were paddled with a skateboard and fence posts.

"I think people are just taking it way too far sometimes."
LUCAS JANSEN, SOON-TO-BE NINTH GRADER

Lawyer James Rybchuk said paddling as a form of initiation has been around since the 1950s.

The practice seemed to fade for a while, he said, before making a violent resurgence.

"Where do you draw the line on typical frosh activities? It can't be anything that results in psychological or physical injury or damage to the children and that's clearly the case here. They suffered psychologically, emotionally ... and the physical injuries in and of themselves were well documented."

However, Rybchuk acknowledged there can still be a place for such activities, if it's done appropriately.

"It's not an offence to apply force or to touch somebody if they're consenting to it," he said.

"So if it's clear the Grade 9s are participating in this voluntarily, willing and they consent to the activity – especially beforehand – then that's fine. It's when they don't, it's when they're not agreeable to the demeaning, humiliating, psychologically damaging or physically damaging behaviour that you get into trouble." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bautista's bat saves the day

- All-star slugger homers to lift Jays over Phillies and avoid sweep
- Huge crowds filled the Rogers Centre as Halladay returned to town

▶ Jose Bautista slides safely into third base yesterday.

On day when Jose Bautista was named an all-star with a record number of votes, the Blue Jays slugger proved his fans right.

Bautista blasted his major league leading 27th home run to lift Toronto over Philadelphia in a 7-4 win yesterday afternoon and avoid a sweep by the Phillies, who won the first two games 7-6 and 5-3.

The victory for Toronto (41-44) also cooled off Phillies lefty Cliff Lee, who came into the game with a smoking-hot ERA and win streak, having surrendered a measly one earned run over his last five outings.

BLUE JAYS	PHILLIES
7	4

But Lee's day unravelled in the eighth when Eric Thames tied the game with a no-doubt solo shot over the centre-field wall on the first pitch he saw.

That set up Bautista's heroics when he blasted Lee's 2-1 fastball to his usual sweet spot over the left field wall, sending the 26,204 at Rogers Centre into a frenzy.

"For Eric to come out and start an inning like that was huge," said Bautista. "I was able to follow it up and it was a good feeling in the dugout."

After Bautista cleared the bases, Adam Lind singled before Edwin Encarnacion went deep on a fastball and all of a sudden the Blue Jays had a three-run cushion.

The game capped a Canada Day weekend where the atmosphere at Rogers Centre was electric despite two straight defeats. Former Jays ace Roy Halladay made his long-awaited return to Toronto and the 89,590 fans over Friday and Saturday was the largest two-day crowd at Rogers Centre since July 22-23, 2006 (92,351).

"You get to this point in July, all-star weekend is coming, and guys are starting to get a little fatigued," said Jays manager John Farrell. "The energy gave us a boost, gave us a lift. Hopefully, that's a glimpse or a vision of what lies ahead for us."

'Something I'll never forget'

Jose Bautista is the people's choice heading into the all-star game.

The Toronto Blue Jays slugger received a record 7,454,753 fan votes ahead of the annual game July 12 at Chase Field in Phoenix.

Bautista is the first Blue Jay to lead voting for the game and the first Toronto player to be voted to the game since first baseman Carlos Delgado in 2003.

6M Bautista's total surpassed the previous mark of 6,069,688 set by Ken Griffey Jr. in 1994.

"It's crazy," he said before yesterday's game against the Philadelphia Phillies.

"It's a good feeling, something I'll never forget. Hopefully, I can keep improving every year."

New York Yankees outfielder Curtis Granderson was second with 6,683,877 votes. Cincinnati Reds first baseman Joey Votto of Etobicoke made the National League team as a reserve.

Leafs add talent in trade, but also risk

General manager Brian Burke took two pieces that didn't fit the puzzle that is the 2011-12 Maple Leafs and turned them into a top-six forward and a top-four defenceman yesterday.

That's what cap space in an off-year for free agents will do for you.

The Leafs are considerably stronger by adding speedy centre Matthew Lombardi and defenceman Cody Franson from Nashville than they were with little-used defenceman Brett Lebda and low-level prospect Robert Slaney, who went the other way in yesterday's trade.

The Predators also get a fourth-round pick from Toronto on the condition that Lombardi plays 60 games.

The Leafs take on a considerable amount of salary and risk with Lombardi. He missed 80 games with a concussion last season and said yesterday he wasn't able to promise to be ready for the beginning of this season.

"My health is getting better," said Lombardi. "I'm staying positive, it's getting better every week. It's been a long process. Longer than I hoped for. The goal is to be ready for training camp. That's what I'm hoping for. There's nothing certain with this kind of injury. We're going to take the time we need and go from there.

"I just want to get healthy. I'm excited. I wish I was healthy today. I wish I could say I was perfectly ready to play. I'm not there yet."

The 29-year-old Lombardi — a Montreal native — has two years left on his contract at $3.5 million US per year. But he has considerable upside if healthy with tremendous speed and the ability to score 20 goals. He recorded a career-high 53 points in 2009-10 in Phoenix.

He signed as a free agent with Nashville last summer, but lasted only two games.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Lack of big games may have left Canada unprepared

While 10 members of France's women's soccer team were hoisting a Champions League trophy back in May, Canada's women's team was training in virtual seclusion in Rome.

The Canadians arrived at the FIFA Women's World Cup riding high hopes, having spent four months in Italy training, bonding and soaking up the Azurri soccer culture. But when the World Cup whistle blew, it became abundantly clear the one thing missing was games, say the players.

"It's something we have to go back and look at obviously," said veteran goalkeeper Karina LeBlanc. "We thought coming out of preparation that we did the right thing, so we have to go back and look at it. Games are great and also time together is great so you have to find the balance.

"I'm sure our coaching staff will figure out what's best for us for the Olympics and Olympic qualifying, hopefully, down the road."

The sixth-ranked Canadians were expected to at least make it out of the group stage but were crushed 4-0 by seventh-ranked France after losing 2-1 to Germany. The French, whose roster includes 10 members who play together year-round with Champions League winner Olympique Lyon, maintained their poise. The Canadians just looked panicked.

There is no underestimating the value of regular games, the players said. There's no way to reproduce crowds of thousands, and no way to practise keeping your cool when everything is on the line.

"We as players, we want to be together more but we want to be together in an environment where we can play more games, where we are comfortable with being a goal up, being a goal down, just dealing with those things that are part of soccer," LeBlanc said. "That's one of the things we recognized we need to get more of."

▶ Novak Djokovic celebrates championship point at Wimbledon yesterday after defeating Rafael Nadal.

Djokovic seals spot atop new tennis order

World's new no. 1 wins first Wimbledon in four sets (6-4, 6-1, 1-6, 6-3)
Serb 5-0 against Nadal in 2011 Gets first Grand Slam win over Spaniard

Until yesterday, Novak Djokovic never managed to win a grass-court tournament of any sort, let alone Wimbledon.

Until this marvellous — and nearly perfect — year, Djokovic was very good. Now he's great.

After outrunning, outswinging and, for stretches, dominating defending champion Rafael Nadal for his third major championship overall, Djokovic crouched on Centre Court, reached down, plucked some blades of grass and shoved them in his mouth.

"I felt like an animal. I wanted to see how it tastes. It tastes good," Djokovic said later, his eyes wide and his smile contagious. "It came spontaneously, really. I didn't plan to do it. I didn't know what to do for my excitement and joy."

Putting together one of the best seasons by any athlete in any sport in recent memory, Djokovic claimed major trophies from the Australian Open and Wimbledon. Today, he will rise to No. 1 from No. 2 in the ATP rankings, overtaking Nadal, a switch guaranteed by virtue of Djokovic's win in the semifinals Friday.

"I want to win more Grand Slams," said Djokovic, the first man since Andre Agassi in 1992 to win his first grass title at Wimbledon. "I will not definitely stop here, even though I have achieved (the) two biggest things in my life in three days."

Which, perhaps, is why he engaged in such a lengthy and original celebration, even tossing several rackets into the stands, the sort of crowd-pleasing gesture for which Djokovic long has been known.

Indeed, early in his career, Djokovic stood out less for his shot-making than for his showmanship — check out his spot-on impersonations of other pros, including Nadal, on YouTube — and a hard-to-explain propensity for losing, or even quitting, during late-round matches at majors.

For years, Federer and Nadal ruled tennis. One or the other was No. 1 every week since February 2004. One or the other won 22 of the last 26 Grand Slam tournaments, including Nadal's 10 titles.

But now Djokovic owns three of the other four trophies in that span — 2009 U.S. Open champion Juan Martin del Potro has the other — and finally elbowed his way past that pair in the rankings.

"We all know the careers of Nadal and Federer ... They have been the two most dominant players in the world the last five years. They have won most of the majors," Djokovic said. "So sometimes it did feel a little bit frustrating when you kind of get to the later stages of a Grand Slam — meaning last four, last eight — and then you have to meet them. They always come up with their best tennis when it matters the most. ... I always believed that I have (enough) quality to beat those two guys."

Djokovic was 0-5 against Nadal at Grand Slam tournaments entering yesterday — including retirements from a 2006 French Open quarter-final and 2007 Wimbledon semifinal.

A more significant head-to-head record, though, is one both men acknowledged played a role yesterday: Remarkably, Djokovic is 5-0 against Nadal this year, all in tournament finals.

Jason Barnes hauled in a two of Ricky Ray's three touchdown passes last night as the Edmonton Eskimos opened their 2011 CFL season with a 42-28 win over the Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Barnes finished the game with five catches for 104 yards, while fellow Edmonton receiver Adarius Bowman caught seven passes for 103 yards and a TD. Ray went 21-of-27 for 294 yards.

Ray found Barnes for 35-yard score on the Eskimos' second possession of the game.

After allowing a 14-yard touchdown pass from Darian Durant to Efrem Hill, Ray found Barnes again from 14 yards to give Edmonton a 14-7 lead.

Edmonton's defence stepped up by stopping the Riders on their next possession and recovering a Durant fumble, setting up a pair of Damon Duval field goals.

Saskatchewan responded with a 43-yard Eddie Johnson field goal.

Edmonton scored for a fifth straight possession when Daniel Porter found the end zone on a five-yard run, giving the Eskimos a 27-10 lead.

Johnson added a 22-yard field goal before Saskatchewan running back Wes Cates found the end zone from 24 yards out to cut the deficit to 27-20 at halftime.

Neither team could get the offence rolling in the third quarter until Weldon Brown intercepted a Durant pass that was tipped by Terrence Nunn. Ray found Bowman five plays later for a four-yard touchdown pass.

REAL TESTIMONIALS

In Philippines there are witch doctors that will do just about anything for little money to people they don't even know. In my case it was different, my enemy was a witch that lived in Manila who was very powerful but not more powerful than the Shaman. The Shaman showed me that god's power is the greatest and that people like him do cure for real.
